MEETING OF MACLEOD CITIZENS AUGUST 26th TO DISCUSS HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER

A meeting is called for the evening of Tuesday, August 26th in the Town Hall, Macleod, for the purpose of discussing the proposed introduction of hydro-electric power.

At the meeting the Mayor and Council will be present and also officials from the Calgary Power Co. The object is to give all those who are not fully informed as to the project complete information, and it is hoped that every person who has not the fullest information on the subject will be present and secure any information desired.

It will be a very pleasing thing if there are any questions that involve the looking up of records, that such questions should be submitted before-hand to Secretary-Treasurer Brown of the Town of Macleod, so that the answers may be readily and accurately given.

It is especially requested that all those who have any adverse criticisms of the project, make them, will be present and secure information or present their views on the subject, as all views, both for and against are urgently requested (by the council).

The officials of the company will present latest slides, the general subject of the project, and the electrical developments in the Province of Alberta. This will be extremely interesting and informative and it is desired that all the Macleod citizens should have the advantage of seeing these slides.

The voting for or against the project is set for Tuesday, September 17th.

HONOR TO VOLTAIRE

The municipal council of Geneva purchased for the sum of $400,000 the fine old house in the suburb of St. Jean, in which Voltaire lived and worked for many years. It has been proposed to erect modern flats on this historic property, but this calamity has been prevented by the public demand for its preservation to the memory of the writer whose force and influence were greater than that of any man living in the eighteenth century.

There was a time when good people feared of Voltaire as they would of the devil himself. But when the arch-ironist of all that was holy, moral, uplifting, thousands of preachers have wailed eloquently in picturing Voltaire suffering the eternal torments of the damned as punishment for the culmination of impious teachings in his lifetime.

Happily, the world has reached a point where freedom, and by the exercise of reason, it is now possible fairly to estimate the part played by Voltaire in the cause of humanity.

Induced by the more exacting standards of this age, Voltaire's character provides a contemptuous criticism of his own, unscrupulous, and sensual, but these characteristics were common in the eighteenth century, and flourished abundantly in the courts, in the churches, and among the pillars of society, but his moral courage, his passionate hatred of injustice and superstition, and his broad human sympathies, have made him immeasurably above his contemporaries.

Voltaire, understood, as few writers have done, the penetrating power of mockery and ridicule as weapons in the warfare against the evils and corruptions which oppressed society, and it was the consummate use of this power that gained for him the hatred of ecclesiastics and the privileged class, but his fearless exposure of injustice, superstition and hypocrisy fired the imaginations of men who were kindly groping for political and intellectual freedom.

Voltaire has been accused of atheism times without number, but a complete denial of this charge is supplied in his own confession of faith made shortly before his death: "I do adore God, loving my friends, not hating my enemies, and seeking only the good of my fellow-men."

The good people of Geneva intelligently appreciate the genius of this great writer, and do honor to his memory by the preservation of the house in which he worked and lived, a real and inexhaustible energy for many years.

BADEN-POWELL

When Sir Robert Baden-Powell launched the Boy Scout movement more than twenty years ago, the event created but a mild interest in the public mind. Most people who have any thought at all in their heads, when they look at it, look at it as a harmless and amusing game that would drive its short life, and then be quietly left in the oblivion of forgotten things. But the movement caught on from a very inception and has grown into a mighty force for good all over the civilized world.

The extent to which the organization has grown is emphasized by the fact that 42 nations are represented at the grand rally held in London this month. This notable gathering of the world's youth has been honored by the presence of the Prince of Wales, who has been initiated into the mysteries of the order and has been knighted around the camp fire.

The rally has also been marked by the receipt of a donation from a New York banker to the amount of $50,000, to be used for the promotion of international good.

And of all, the King has made this gathering memorable by raising Sir Robert Baden-Powell to the peerage. The new爵位 does not date the title Sir Robert will continue to use, but it is to be hoped that the inspiration of the similar name of Baden-Powell will be retained. The name of the veteran scout is dear to the hearts of many thousands of boys living in several scattered parts of the earth. No man has ever more nobly deserved recognition by his sovereign, and it is pleasing to think that general satisfaction will be felt not only in the wide extent of the British Empire, but also in the numerous foreign countries where the boy scout has become a part of the national life.

HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

There are certain diseases which, although they are comparatively rare and are responsible for but few deaths, attract attention because of the suffering which they cause and our inability to cure them. For example, we think of rabies with horror, not because it is a common disease or because it causes many deaths, but for the reason that when it does occur, we find ourselves helpless.

The reason why we refer to this particular disease is not in order to cause a thrill of horror, but to remind our readers that rabies can be prevented. The time between the occurrence of the bite and the development of symptoms—the incubation period—varies a good deal; if the disease is to be prevented, it is necessary that the treatment, which by the new Simple method takes fourteen days, be completed, and that fifteen days be allowed for the full development of the protection which the treatment gradually produces. In order to secure the necessary twenty-nine days before the symptoms develop, it is essential that treatment be started at the earliest possible moment.

Persons who are bitten by animals should immediately consult their physician in regard to treatment. The doctor will administer the wound with fuming nitric acid and will advise as to the Pasteur preventive treatment. After considering the circumstances.

The animal responsible should not be killed, but should be captured and kept. If it has rabies, it will die in a few days. If after ten days, the animal shows no symptoms, this is evidence that it is not suffering from rabies. In the meantime, treatment will have been started because, as stated, there is no time to be lost, and it is continued until the physician is certain that it is not required, or, if it is required, until the treatment has been completed.

The Pasteur preventive treatment, or rabies vaccination, is not a cure. It is of no value once the disease has developed; it does prevent when given promptly. Its value depends upon the time factor; given early means success; given late means failure.

Questions, concerning rabies, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 1st College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

ESSEX the Challenger

Essex the Challenger has outstandingly established itself as the Reliability car of the year.

How sweeping and convincing are its proofs! In the hands of more than 200,000 owners, the actual service records prove the lowest service costs, and smallest service requirements of any car ever known.

Two Essex cars made the only perfect success—in the famous international reliability classic, the Tour de France, winning against many far costlier cars of American and foreign make. And every American locality knows Essex the Challenger for some outstanding reliability record—in Arizona, 1343 miles in 24 hours; in Michigan, 1259 miles in 24 hours and in Kansas 1109 miles in 24 hours.

These are but the dramatic representation of the kind of reliability every Essex the Challenger owner knows. Under every condition of climate and road, in hard country usage as well as continuous city service, it has made itself known to its owners and through them to the world as "the Reliability Car of the year."

MAYNARD AND TARGAN give NEW THRILLS IN SPEEDY FILM OF THE ROBOBO, "CHEYENNE"

Picture, Made at Cheyenne's Thirty-third Annual Rodeo, "The Rodeo Days, Shows Real Champions in Action—Gives Audience Grand Stand Seat Saturday Night—Maynard's Riding, Which Has Placed That First National Star on a Class by Himself, is Superb in "Cheyenne."

A motion picture that was evidently constructed with but three prime ideas in mind is "Cheyenne." The three can be tabbed. The first, in speed, the second thrills and the third first-class entertainment, and all three together make "Cheyenne," Ken Maynard's latest First National western feature, a gem of its kind.

HOOT GIBSON COMING TO EMPRESS IN REAL ROBOBO PHOTO-DRAMA MONDAY AND TUESDAY "KING OF THE ROBOBO" A RIDING THRILLER

Hoot Gibson comes riding into the Empress Theatre in what has been called his greatest screen vehicle. It is "King of the Robo," a Universal picture filmed when the recent first National rodeo at Sudbury, Field, Cheyenne, was in progress, the stirring most forming the background for most of the picture. Gibson is recognized as the leader of the new breed of western film stars, in striving for new plots and ideas he thought of the heretofore Chicago number of the tremendous field, the largest of its kind in the world. He then signed B. M. Bowser to write the story with the "King of the Robo" as the background. The noted author wrote "King of the Robo" in the nature of a sequel to "Chip the Pioneer" (King of the Robo) stories in which Gibson scored a great hit.

ELKS' BIG-CARNIVAL, DREW WONDERFUL CROWD—EDDIE SATHE WON FORD COACH

The "Hells Bells" and their loyal supporters, the "Ladies of the Royal Purple" of Macleod, brought to a close on Saturday night, the big Carnival which opened so successfully the previous Saturday night, by being climaxed in darkness when the electric lights went out.

The "Hells" had a fine stroke of business when they decided to re-open the Carnival last Saturday night, to give their disappointed friends of the previous Saturday another opportunity of enjoying the fun of the Carnival. Never before was seen in Macleod on a Saturday night such a large number of cars parked on the streets, bringing in an enormous crowd of people who literally packed the Carnival ground and the big dance hall. To say that the Carnival was a success, drawing in a million dollars from a financial standpoint and one of real enjoyment. Money seemed to be spent freely and the sponsors evidently got lots of kick and fun in the spending. The "South staff of the Ladies" of the Royal Purple was a great attraction, and many curious eyes were cast upon the beautiful Scotch Tartan Plaids that were displayed on the stalls, to the quarters from the pockets of the crowd. The important and central excitement of the evening of course was the drawing for the "Ford Coach," which took place about 11:30. The boys of the B. P. O. E. were determined to show to the enormous crowds present that the drawing was straight and above board; the stubs of the tickets were enclosed in a sealed case and brought on to the grounds on a truck. Three men—Messrs. T. B. Armstrong, Bank Manager; W. A. Day, Mayor; and C. W. Brown, J. P.—the tractor were called from the crowd on to the truck and were handed the key of the case. They took the truck and put them in a chair, giving the chair a number of turns, then called a little girl out of the crowd. Crowded, 8 years of age, who drew the lucky ticket. The lucky ticket, as announced by the three gentlemen, was the number 12345. The girl's name on the ticket was Eddie Nathan, farmer, Keweenaw. The winner of the
